

Iowa City Okays New Voter Registration Policy

Statement of Intent Is Sufficient for Students

IOWA CITY — Following an hour-long discussion at an informal session late Monday afternoon, the Iowa City council formulated a voter registration policy that leaves the responsibility of determining intent of residency to the individual.

The policy established would permit anyone in Iowa City who is 21 years old to register to vote if he has been in the state six months, in the county 60 days, and in his precinct 10 days.

Mayor Loren Hickerson commented that he feels the policy will simplify the problem here by placing the responsibility where it really belongs — on the individual.

Lee Butherus was the only councilman to oppose the move. He said he was concerned about "consistency" in residency requirements. He explained he didn't like the mere six months physical presence in the state, but preferred guidelines for residency.

Contrary to Law?

The action was taken against the advice of City Attorney Jay Honohan who said it was "contrary to his opinion of what the state law says".

Honohan reported to the council that the court suit discussed a week ago to seek a declaratory judgment on registration guidelines was not going to come.

He said that Hawkeye Area Legal Services Society Director Gary Veldey and University Law Professor Arthur Bonfield had agreed the standards the city was following on residency followed the state law, although there perhaps was room for refinement of the guidelines.

Factors that were considered by the city had included drivers licenses, motor vehicle registration, housing, employment and payment of taxes. Although Honohan advised the council it was not necessary to formalize the registration instruction to the city clerk, the council planned to do so Tuesday night at the council's regular meeting. City Manager

Frank Smiley asked that the policy be "put on record" because it did not follow the city attorney's recommendation.

State Rep. Minnette Doderer presented a letter to the council asking that married and unmarried students all meet the same tests of residency. While there were several questions asked of single students, Mrs. Doderer pointed out that in Iowa City it is assumed married students are qualified to register. She said she cannot find "any authority that states marital status either qualifies or disqualifies anyone to vote".

Further correspondence also was received from the League of Women Voters and from the university's Student Senate. Honohan said he assumed anyone registering to vote here under the new policy who might have out-of-state driving licenses or vehicle registrations would be in violation of the state's driving laws.

Parking

The council also considered parking regulations as recommended by the City Manager. Smiley suggested that restrictions in problem areas be established in three phases: First, prohibiting parking at all times on one side of a street, second, on the remaining side from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week, and third, if there still is a problem, on both sides at all times.

With respect to the Manville Heights area from which restricted parking petitions have come to the council, Smiley recommended the first two phases be incorporated in the area bounded by Park Road, Rocky Shore drive, the Cranick Railroad, and Riverside drive. He suggested the boundary streets, however, be left as they are.

The council favored a slightly altered approach which would restrict parking on the second side only five days a week. Mayor Hickerson said that the heavy week-long school-university schedule does not tend to carry over enough into the weekend to cause a serious problem.

In other business, the Mayor announced that the Low Rent Housing Agency is presently planning its one-day workshop for Wednesday, June 19, and that Iowa City's building inspectors will join similar inspectors from other cities in working the next two days checking the conditions of buildings in Charles City.

The council also made plans to meet separately within the next two weeks with residents of the Englert tract, with the architects for the proposed parking ramp, and with representatives of the new Johnson county board of health.

In view of the city council's decision on voter registration, City Attorney Jay Honohan has withdrawn his challenge of the council's decision of the federal government if it is not upgraded.

Bond Vote Thursday in N. Fayette

WEST UNION — Residents of the North Fayette County Community school district will go to the polls Thursday between noon and 7 p.m. to ballot on a $1,390,000 bond issue to finance the construction and furnishing of a new high school building in West Union and a new elementary building at Hawkeye.

School officials say a new high school building would eliminate the over-crowded conditions presently existing at the junior and senior high school, would provide a building more adaptable to a modern day high school educational program, and would provide facilities to adequately accommodate the activities program.

Plans

The new construction would allow grades seven, eight and nine to use the present high school building in West Union, and the present junior high building would be razed as soon as possible.

A total of 195 students in grades kindergarten through six are presently enrolled at the Hawkeye attendance center. These elementary students live in an area of approximately 80 square miles, which represents the west 40 percent of the entire district, including the towns of Alpha and Hawkeye. Projected enrollment figures indicate adequate enrollment to maintain an elementary attendance center at this location.

The building to be replaced there was partially constructed in 1896 and part in 1915.

According to Supt. R. Wesley Carlson, an annual levy of less than seven mills would be necessary to repay school bonds in the amount of $1,390,000 over a 20-year period. This estimate is based on present assessed valuation which has been increasing each year, and future increases should decrease the levy.

Millage Rates

The 1968 millage rate for school purposes is 45.344 mills compared to 51.095 for 1967. A slight millage increase for 1969 is anticipated due mainly to the increased enrollment requiring additional teachers and additional classrooms.

A $1,350,000 bond issue was voted down in November of 1967. Due to inflationary trends, it was necessary to increase the amount of this bond issue $40,000. This increase will permit the district to construct basically the same type and quality of buildings as originally proposed.

Owen Will Seek Iowa Agriculture Secretary Post

Kenneth Owen

DES MOINES (AP) — Kenneth Owen of Centerville announced Tuesday he will run for Iowa secretary of agriculture, a post he held between 1965 and 1967.

Owen charged incumbent Republican L. B. Liddy with failing to maintain an adequate meat inspection program, enacted by the 1965 legislature, and other consumer protection services.

Owen, 49, served in the Iowa house for three terms and has recently resigned as an Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service fieldman for 11 counties.

He said the state meat inspection program has deteriorated by the resignation of the former director, Dr. Russell McNellis, and "an insufficient number of inspectors." He said the program could be taken over by the federal government if it is not upgraded.
