NDS directives links are now "static." Static files are identified by a "curr" extension. When you bookmark an effective directive, the link will remain static regardless of the version of the directive as long as the directive number remains the same. Note: Pending directives will be removed when the directive becomes effective. If you book marked the directive while it was pending, that link will disappear until the next version becomes available. However, the pending directive will be moved to the "effective" static bookmark when it becomes operational. You will not need to change the bookmarked link for the effective directive.
