Subject: Change of the MADIS Distribution Services: Effective Wednesday, January 21, 2015

Starting on Wednesday, January 21, 2015, beginning at 1200 Coordinated Universal Time (UTC), all Meteorological Assimilation Data Ingest System (MADIS) distribution services (Local Data Manager (LDM), Web services, and File Transfer Protocol [FTP]) have new National Centers for Environmental Prediction Central Operations (NCO) access points.

The MADIS LDM servers at ldm.madis-data.noaa.gov and ldm.madis-data.nws.noaa.gov at Global Systems Division (GSD) and the National Weather Service (NWS) Telecommunications Operations Center (TOC) will be changed to:

ldm.madis.ncep.noaa.gov

The MADIS web services being provided at <https://madis-data.nws.noaa.gov> and <https://madis-data.noaa.gov> will be replaced with the following services at <https://madis-data.ncep.noaa.gov>.

MADIS surface dumps:

<https://madis-data.ncep.noaa.gov/public/sfcdump.html>

<https://madis-data.ncep.noaa.gov/public2/hydrodump.html>
<https://madis-data.ncep.noaa.gov/research/hydrodump.html>

MADIS MAP/Cooperative Agency Profiles (CAP) displays:
<https://madis-data.ncep.noaa.gov/cap>

The MADIS public FTP access points websites: pftp.madis-data.noaa.gov and pftp.madis-data.nws.noaa.gov will be changed to the new NCEP ftp access point:

madis-data.ncep.noaa.gov

The MADIS restricted FTP access is now provided through web services on the National Centers for Environmental Prediction Central Operations (NCO) MADIS systems. Please contact madis-support@noaa.gov if you need help with this transition.

The MADIS teams at Global Systems Division (GSD) and NCO have tried to ensure all firewall rules are in place for users, but need to work with the users to verify that data ingest to user sites is not interrupted during the operational transition.

The current operational instance of MADIS running at GSD and the NWS TOC are scheduled to be decommissioned starting March 31, 2015; at which time, users that have not transitioned will no longer be able to receive MADIS data. Please work with us to help avoid data disruptions to your sites.
