

Strong Winds and Light Interior Snowfall

December 4, 2024
4:03 PM

Overview

- Strong winds develop with gusts up to 50 mph expected Thursday through much of Thursday evening.
- Snow develops across the interior late this evening, with up to an inch or two in the higher elevations through early Thursday.

HAZARDS & IMPACTS

Strong Winds

- Wind Gusts: Gusts up to around 50 mph expected.
- Location/Timing: Entire local Tri-State Thursday 6AM to 10PM EST.
- Impacts: Strong winds will blow down limbs and blow around unsecured objects, including holiday decorations. A few trees and power lines could be downed and power outages are possible.

Light Interior Snowfall

- Snowfall: Up to 1 to 2 inches.
- Location/Timing: Portions of the Lower Hudson Valley, interior NE NJ and interior Southern CT late this evening through early Thursday.
- Impacts: Snow / snow showers may reduce visibility and create hazardous driving conditions, including during Thursday's morning commute.

NWS ALERTS

- Wind Advisory: Entire local Tri-State from 6AM to 10PM EST Thursday.
- Gale Warning: All coastal waters through Thursday evening, ocean waters and extreme Eastern LI Sound until early Friday morning.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS

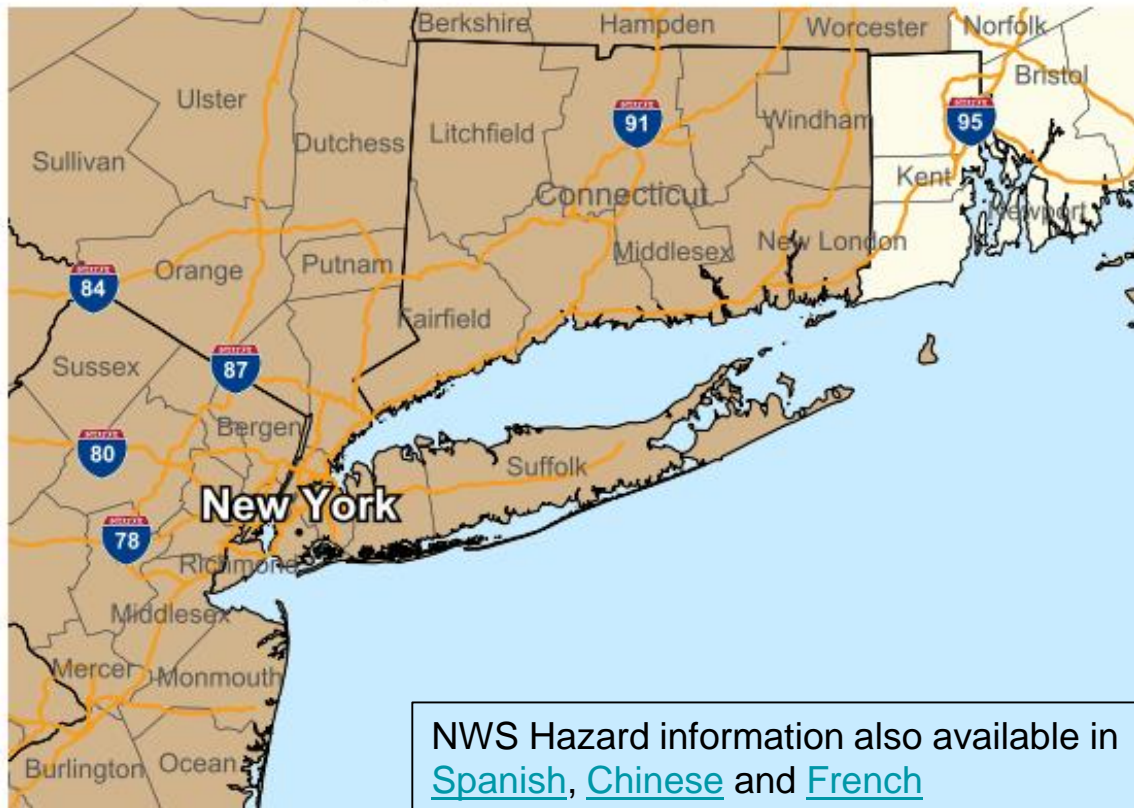

- Locally higher than 2 inches of snow possible for interior higher elevations through early Thursday.
- Roads in areas of measureable snow may become snow covered and slick tonight through early Thursday.

NEXT BRIEF

This will be the last briefing for this event unless significant forecast changes occur.

Wind Watches Warnings and Advisories

NWS Hazard information also available in Spanish, Chinese and French

Graphic Created
December 4th, 2024
2:49 PM CST

Maximum Wind Gust Forecast

December 4, 2024
4:03 PM

Most Likely Snowfall - Official Forecast

December 4, 2024
4:03 PM

